

Gabin Comrade Before Murder Caught in Iowa

"Handsome Charley" Roshore, Last Person Seen With Slain Restaurant Owner, Trained to Corydon

N. Y. Woman With Him

Trunks Bought Here Offer Clue; Detectives Start East With the Prisoner

"Handsome Charley" Roshore, the last man seen with Manuel Gabin, the Spanish restaurateur who was shot and killed June 21, has been arrested in Corydon, Ia., according to a message received at Police Headquarters last night from detectives who have been on his trail since Gabin was killed. A woman whom Roshore knew in New York was with him, the message said.

The detectives said that they were starting for New York at once with their prisoner. They are Frank Campbell, of the Charles Street police station, and Henry Semf, and Thomas Martin, of the Homicide Bureau. Almost as soon as Mrs. Fanny Gabin, the young wife of the murdered man, reported the discovery of her husband's body in the new apartments he was decorating for her at 770 Washington Street, the detectives heard about "Handsome Charley."

They were told that Charley and Gabin had spent most of the evening together and that about 1 a. m. on June 21 Gabin had invited his friend to see the apartment he was fixing up for his wife. That was the last that any of the wealthy Spaniard's other friends saw of him alive. At 9 o'clock that morning his wife found him dead, sprawled across a bed at 770 Washington Street.

Gabin's jewelry, worth several thousand dollars, was missing, three rings having been torn from his fingers so roughly as to lacerate the flesh. There was no money in his pocket, although his wife and his attorney, Mark Alter, believed that he was carrying as much as $3,000. "Handsome Charley" was not to be found in his accustomed haunts that day. Neither could the detectives find a woman living on West Forty-seventh Street, who generally knew where he was. They discovered one of Gabin's rings in the shop of a jeweler, who told them that "Handsome Charley" had left it there to have the setting changed. A woman had another.

Learning that "Handsome Charley" had bought two trunks, one of them a woman's wardrobe trunk of peculiar design, the detectives picked up the trail in a Jersey City baggage room. They followed it to Atlantic City, Philadelphia, Minneapolis and, finally, to Corydon, Ia.

Dr. Hammer Wins Delay Sentence of Physician for Man-Slaughter Postponed

When Dr. Julius Hammer, of 1480 Washington Avenue, the Bronx, was arraigned yesterday before Judge Louis D. Gibbs in the Bronx County Court to receive sentence for manslaughter in the first degree, of which he was found guilty last week by a jury, the physician's counsel asked a postponement until July 7 because they are prepared to present several motions. The request was granted.

Two hundred letters from physicians, lawyers and business men, urging clemency for Dr. Hammer, were produced in court. Dr. Hammer was convicted of performing an unnecessary operation which resulted in the death of a woman.

Nominees Photographed With Campaign Pilot

Left to right—Will H. Hays, national Republican chairman; Senator Harding and Governor Coolidge. They were photographed in Washington, where they have been discussing plans for the campaign.

Harding Aims To Overthrow One-Man Rule

"Now, Governor, you can freeze up and they'll understand."

The Governor chuckled and said he expected to have a busy afternoon before the Interstate Commerce Commission trying to get coal for his state and expected to return home on the Federal Express. He said he was planning to begin his vacation in Vermont at once and would devote the time to work on his speech of acceptance, which he will deliver July 27. He said he hadn't made any plans for his campaign.

Senator Harding then pushed Will Hays forward and said:

"Let me present the motorman of the campaign."

Mr. Hays grinned broadly and said: "I'm so happy about this. I just want to congratulate the country all the time. I'm just the happy as I can be. This meeting between the next President and the next Vice-President is an omen that argues very favorably for the future relations of these two. It hasn't always been done this way. In recent periods the President and Vice-President—you see what I mean?"

May Abandon Porch

Mr. Hays was asked at this point if he had any comment to make on the published interview with Senator Boies Penrose in which he said he was opposed to a front porch campaign and thought Senator Harding ought to move around and let the people get acquainted with him. Mr. Hays hadn't anything to say, Senator Harding said.

"I'm not surprised that there should be a difference of opinion as to the most effective method of campaigning. I'm glad we don't all think alike on the subject. I've not had an opportunity to talk to Senator Penrose personally about the campaign. I recognize that, as he says, improved transportation facilities have made it easier to swing around the circle, but on the other hand the country is calling for deliberate utterances. For that reason the front porch campaign appeals to me so strongly."

It is known, however, that the front porch idea, strongly favored by Chairman Hays, is likely to be abandoned about the end of August. In Ohio they know Senator Harding to be a whirlwind campaigner, and his ability in that respect is a weapon some of his friends dislike to see unemployed.

The talk with newspaper men ended when Senator Harding said:

"Governor, there is a boy of young

Indies out in the hall who want to meet the next Vice-President."

"Well, fine," Governor Coolidge said, "I'll feel perfectly at home with them." And the two went out and greeted one by one twenty-four young women of the graduating class of the Corning (N. Y.) Academy, who had come to Washington on a sightseeing trip.

Lunching in the Senate restaurant followed, and Senator Harding had as his guests Governor Coolidge, Mr. Stearns, Mr. Reynolds, Mr. Hays and Representative Simeon D. Fess. Mr. Fess is chairman of the Congressional Campaign Committee, and during the afternoon he and Chairman Hays talked over plans for coordinating the work of the Congressional committee with that of the national committee.

During the afternoon Senator Harding received George M. Reynolds, head of the Continental and Commercial National Bank of Chicago. It was announced that Mr. Reynolds came at the Senator's invitation to talk over the business and financial situation of the country. Another caller was Senator William Calder, of New York, who came out of the nominee's office grinning broadly and said:

"We'll carry New York by a quarter of a million."

Message From Ohio

Senator Harding received the following telegram from the Republican state convention of Ohio, at Columbus:

"The Republican party of Ohio, in convention assembled, sends most cordial greetings and congratulations upon the deserved high honor bestowed upon you by the Republican National Convention in choosing you as its standard bearer in the present campaign for the Presidency. We pledge you, on behalf of a united and militant party in your native and home state, our enthusiastic support until your triumphant election in November. We congratulate the nation that, with your accession to the Presidency, will begin another Republican administration instead of a personal, autocratic government—and an administration that will give help and confidence to the people of this country, that will bring peace to America and will reestablish the government of this nation as conceived by the founders."

The unblushing method by which the state government, through the legislative requirements as to publication of all public legal notices, controls a very large number of the papers of the state suggests Lenin and Trotsky.

William Howard Taft Discusses North Dakota Primaries

By William Howard Taft

(Copyright, 1920, by Public Ledger Co.) PHILADELPHIA, June 30.—A Republican primary was held in North Dakota to-day that means much in the politics of both that state and of the country. It was to determine who should be the Republican nominee for United States Senator to succeed Senator Gronna and who should be the nominees of that party for the Governorship and all the other state offices.

The fight was between the Nonpartisan League and its opponents, who style themselves the Independent Voters' Association, or the I. V. A. The greatest interest centered in the choice of the nominee for Governor. Frazier, the incumbent and the chief official head of the Nonpartisan League, sought a renomination. He was opposed by Attorney General Langer. Langer was originally a member of the league and was elected Attorney General by it. He broke with Frazier, Townley and the league control because of the latter's refusal to permit investigation of the affairs of the Fargo Scandinavian Bank, the failure of which is charged to the unlawful use of its assets to further the financial operations of various associations, creations of Townley in the league plans.

Farmers Deaf to Appeals

The opponents of the league have never been so well organized and their speakers in the campaign are culling a spade a spade. The outrageous defiance of the intelligent public opinion by Frazier, Townley and their confederates in public administration would insure their defeat, but for the stolidity of the farmers who are leaguers. There are many of them Scandinavians, Germans and Canadians; their slogan is, "We'll stick." They heed nothing and listen to nothing except what comes from league sources.

The unblushing method by which the state government, through the legislative requirements as to publication of all public legal notices, controls a very large number of the papers of the state suggests Lenin and Trotsky. It is hard to believe that the league could do the things it has done and not be hated from power by an indignant people. The true story includes demoralization of the school system and the connivance of a league majority of the supreme court in other phases of the league's outrageous conduct.

Three Men Rule State

The Nonpartisan League had its origin in a union of farmers to cure a real evil and to put them on an equality in dealing with warehousemen, millers and packers, and others. They made it into a political organization and vested complete power of control in a triumvirate of Townley, Lemken and Wood, whose rule is absolute and who elect their successors. Having solidified the farmers into a unit body impervious to reasoning or facts, they have now developed their real character, which is that of Socialists. They have brought into the service of the state Socialists from every quarter, and they are preparing to create a Socialist government.

Capital is fleeing the state. The credit of county, municipal and state government is at a low ebb. The taxes have been greatly increased, and partly because of the great overhead expense due to creation of commissions and offices filled by non-resident radicals at high salaries. The head of the tax machinery is a Socialist, and he has doubled and trebled the farm assessments of the state, apparently to force land into the hands of the state. Of course, this pinches the farmers, who were the initiators of the whole movement, and ultimately the clash between socialism and the body of farmers means the destruction of the league.

Railroad Men Enlisted

Meantime the league leaders believe they can hold their stolid farmers' support by continuous denunciation of big business, Wall Street and the money powers. They have also enlisted for this election the support of railroad labor unions, which are in the control of radicals and Socialists. Against the league are all the business men of the state, many of the American farmers, a good many Scandinavian and German farmers, formerly of the league, who have seen the light, and a great majority of the service men. The cities will probably be found to have given majorities against the league, but the voice of the country is uncertain. The business men and the conservatives realize the crisis and have been more active than ever in the history of the state. At the moment this is written the result of the balloting is not known.

Senator Gronna seeks renomination. He is opposed by a political professor named Ladd, at the head of the agricultural college of the state, who has embraced the principles of the league and acted with it. Senator Gronna until recently was fighting with the league and placed no obstacles in its path. It was thought that the league might acquiesce in his renomination, but it took Ladd. Mr. Gronna has now become most denunciatory of the league and of Socialism and talks like a conservative. How complete his conversion the future will disclose. Ex-Governor White, a conservative of high standing, the colonel of the one North Dakota regiment which was in the fight overseas, is also a candidate, forced to remain on the ticket, from which he sought to withdraw, by the insistence of the veterans of the World War.

The defeat of the league's plan to capture the Republican party in Minnesota heartened the opponents of the league in the Dakotas. If Langer is elected it will be the beginning of the end of the league's power in all the Northern tier of states from Minnesota to Washington.

The league is socialistic, unpatriotic, anti-American, despotic, dishonest in its methods, and lives only because of the totally blind prejudice and ignorance of the great body of its supporters. It may have been successful yesterday, but it contains the seeds of its own destruction. The sooner the victory over it the less the injury it can do.

Republican Women Ask Candidates to Meeting Hope to Have Harding and Coolidge at Headquarters in New York Soon

Miss Laura Skinner, the original Coolidge enthusiast in New York, has been appointed chairman of the program committee for the Republican Women's Committee at the Hotel Vanderbilt. She said yesterday that she had been in communication with Governor Coolidge and expected to have him at headquarters for a meeting soon.

"We hope to have Senator and Mrs. Harding here before long," she said, "and Governor and Mrs. Coolidge will be here too, if I have my way."

Miss Skinner announced the program for the "birthday" of the Republican party on Tuesday afternoon. Howard Duffield will be the speaker and a new motion picture of Abraham Lincoln will be shown by the National American Service League.

The headquarters will be busy all summer with meetings, every Monday afternoon and evening and speakers' classes on Tuesdays, under the direction of Mrs. Rosalie Lowe Whitney and Mrs. William Vanamee.

Mrs. Mortimer Merken will have charge of the Monday evening forums for July. Mrs. Cortlandt Nichol, of August, and Mrs. Arthur E. Lott for September.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., June 30.—The United States grand jury this afternoon indicted Albert P. Richmond, of this city, for sugar profiteering. Richmond pleaded not guilty.

Ohio Republicans Ignore Prohibition In State Platform

Suffrage Also Regarded as No Longer an Issue in Commonwealth; Greeting Sent to Senator Harding

Special Dispatch to The Tribune

COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 30.—The Republican State Convention, in promulgating its platform to-day, ignored the questions of prohibition and suffrage upon by the State of Ohio in ratifying both amendments and Republican leaders took the view that they are no longer issues in Ohio.

The convention ratified the selection of Presidential electors as made by the districts and further cemented the party by selecting as an elector-at-large W. H. Boyd, of Cleveland, who was a Wood delegate-at-large to the Republican National Convention. The other elector-at-large is L. J. Taber, of Barnesville, master of the Ohio Grange and a director of the Ohio Farm Bureau.

Greetings were sent to Senator Warren G. Harding and Governor Calvin Coolidge, the Republican nominees, together with pledges of support. The platform follows the national platform in a general way.

Senator Harding, in a message, said: "I am uttering a party aspiration rather than a personal ambition when I remind the members of the convention that the nation is looking to Ohio this year to play her full part in Republican restoration, with the attending return to representative popular government under the Constitution."

Efforts of party leaders to cut down the field for the August primaries were unavailing. Former Governor F. B. Willis, Walter F. Brown, of Toledo, a former progressive leader, and Supreme Judge R. M. Wanamaker, with two others, are in the race for Senator, and Congressman R. G. McCulloch, of Canton; former Congressman Ralph D. Cole, of Findlay, and former Mayor H. L. Davis, of Cleveland, are candidates for the nomination for Governor.

Howard Urged for Governor

The Rensselaer County Republican committee at a meeting in Troy yesterday, adopted resolutions calling upon the Republican party to nominate Justice Wesley O. Howard, of Troy, known as "the Farmer Jurist," for Governor. The resolution was offered by Cornelius V. Collins, Republican leader of Rensselaer County.
